

MEP party members hit the Aruba roads in force to show support for their various candidates

As Election Day approaches the yellow flag of MEP dominated the island's highways and back roads on Sunday, as supporters of their various candidates hit the roads to drum up spirit and the vote. Trailer loads of cheering people decked out in MEP yellow made their way around the island, and gathered in various areas to meet and greet with the candidates of their choice. Various rallies hosted large groups that gave the populace the chance to discuss the issues and express their concerns to those that are campaigning on the MEP ticket, as well as enjoy a snack and a cold drink. Support for MEP was abundant, as yellow was the color of the day in flags and banners adorning various vehicles on Sunday.